What is the Law Enforcement Torch Run?

The mission of the Law Enforcement Torch Run for Special Olympics is to raise funds for, and awareness of, the Special Olympics movement worldwide. Law enforcement from all 50 United States, 10 Canadian provinces and territories and 35 nations carry the “Flame of Hope” in honor of Special Olympics athletes in their area and around the world.

The Torch Run is the largest grassroots fundraiser and public awareness vehicle for Special Olympics in the world. This international program continues to raise nearly $35 million annually to support Special Olympics programs. More than 85,000 law enforcement personnel from thousands of agencies around the world have carried the “Flame of Hope.”

In Minnesota

In 2015, the Law Enforcement Torch Run for Special Olympics Minnesota involved more than 750 law enforcement personnel from 75 agencies throughout the state. Their tremendous efforts raised more than $4 million for Special Olympics Minnesota.

History of the Torch Run

The Law Enforcement Torch Run for Special Olympics, began in 1981 when Wichita, Kansas, Police Chief Richard LaMunyon saw an urgent need to raise funds for, and increase awareness of, Special Olympics.

The idea for the Torch Run was to provide local law enforcement officers with an opportunity to volunteer with Special Olympics in the communities where the officers lived and worked. After three successful years in Kansas, Chief LaMunyon presented his idea to the International Association of Chiefs of Police, which endorsed Special Olympics as its official charity through the Torch Run.

The first Torch Run in Minnesota was organized in 1986. Today it is supported by the Minnesota Chiefs of Police Association, Minnesota State Patrol Association and Minnesota Fraternal Order of Police. All law enforcement officers participating in the Torch Run are volunteers. No professional solicitors or promotional companies are authorized to solicit on behalf of this event.
